May 7-8, 2015 -- Nuland and Soros pouring gasoline on Balkans powder keg

The "color revolution" maestro team of Assistant Secretary of State for European/Eurasian Affairs Victoria Nuland and global hedge fund tycoon George Soros have given the final green light to their operatives in Macedonia to stage an uprising against the government of Prime Minister Nikola Gruevski. This move follows an attempt to embarrass Gruevski's government by the release of the transcripts of intercepted phone calls of 20,000 Macedonian citizens, including political leaders and journalists by the U.S.- and Soros-supported Macedonian opposition. The collection of the calls was well-beyond the technical capabilities of the Macedonian intelligence service and there are suspicions that the U.S. and/or German intelligence services were behind the surveillance and the leak of the phone calls to the Macedonian opposition and media. Gruevski and his government have called the leak of the surveillance information a part of a blackmail operation directed against the government. Gruevski ordered the detention of five opposition figures connected to the blackmail case.

By staging a color revolution in Macedonia, Nuland and Soros stand to re-ignite the ethnic conflicts fostered by the Clinton administration's foolhardy and bloody military engagements of the 1990s against Serbia and ethnic Serbs living in Bosnia, Croatia, and Kosovo.

The two main Nuland operatives in Macedonia are Zoran Zaev, the leader of the opposition Social Democratic Union of Macedonia (SDSM) and his predecessor as SDSM leader, former prime minister and president Branko Crvenkovski. Both leaders are now urging their supporters to hit the streets of Skopje and other cities, including Strumica, where Zaev also serves as mayor, to commence a Ukrainian Maidan
Square-styled coup d'etat with Macedonia Square as the central focal point of the uprising.

In typical Soros-style color revolution procedures, the Macedonian opposition has highlighted a "martyr" to their cause. In 2011, when the VMRO DPMNE party celebrated their electoral victory in Skopje, a policemen allegedly beat to death a 22-year old VMRO DPMNE election victory celebrant named Martin Nesvkoski. There is now some doubt as to whether the special policeman convicted of the murder was even on duty that particular evening. However, "Nevkovski" has become a rallying cry for the Soros-financed opposition even though he was supposedly cheering on the victory of the very same government that the Soros operatives are now trying to overthrow.

The opposition to Gruevski's government has been joined by two of the major Soros-funded media operations in Macedonia, the television networks "Telma" and "24 Vesti." They helped stoke recent violent protests directed at the government on Macedonia Square in central Skopje, demonstrations that saw 36 of the 40 total injured in the melees in front of the government headquarters in Skopje identified as police officers. One SDSM leader, Radmila Shekerinska, was witnessed at a café near the protest venue issuing instructions to protesters to forcibly enter the government buildings.

The Soros-operated Radio Free Europe ran with the following incendiary report from Skopje:

"Violent clashes broke out May 5 at a midnight demonstration in the Macedonian capital, Skopje, where at least 1,000 people gathered to protest the 2011 murder of a man beaten by police during postelection celebrations. At least 19 people were injured, including 15 police officers and a photographer."
Police used tear gas and water cannon to disperse the protesters, who chanted 'Murderers! Murderers!' and demanded the government's resignation. Protesters threw objects and broke windows of the government building, crashed cars parked nearby, and torched several containers. Social Democrat Zoran Zaev, Macedonia's opposition leader, accused Prime Minister Nikola Gruevski of attempting to cover up the death of Martin Neskoski [sic], who died celebrating Gruevski's election win. Zaev released audio recordings in which he said the prime minister and other officials discuss how to cover up the killing.”

It is noteworthy how Radio Free Europe understated the number of police officers injured and failed to report on the external agitation behind the riots. Also, why would Gruevski and his senior security officials want to cover up the death of one of the ruling party's own supporters?
Typical Nuland/Soros "protest" with Soros-paid journalists interviewing Soros-paid demonstrators in Skopje.

The real reason behind the attempt to stage a color revolution in Macedonia is that the ethnically-diverse country, where a third of the population is ethnic Albanian, is seen as the weakest link in the planned Turkish Stream pipeline that will transport natural gas from Russia through Turkey, Greece, Macedonia, Serbia, and Hungary into central Europe. Serbian prime minister Aleksandar Vucic has been called to Washington where Vice President Joe Biden, Kerry, Nuland, and company are poised to bring about additional pressure on Serbia to abandon its nascent alliance with the other Turkish Stream partners or face rejection of full Serbian membership in the European Union and NATO. In return for Vucic abandoning the Turkish Stream deal with Russia, the United States is offering to build a new gas terminal on Krk island in Croatia that would deliver by ship natural gas from Qatar, Algeria, and the United States. However, Croatia and Serbia are old foes and Serbia would be dependent on Croatia for its gas supplies instead of the more friendly nations and its traditional allies of Macedonia, Greece, and Russia.

Biden, Kerry, and Nuland are hoping to see Serbia and Macedonia, as well as Greece and Hungary, abandon the Turkish Stream in the same manner that Bulgaria's announcement that it would not permit the South Stream pipeline to cross its borders to transport Russian natural gas from a pipeline under the Black Sea sealed the fate of that project. It should also be noted that R. Hunter Biden, Biden's son, is heavily involved in the natural gas industry in Europe through his employment by Burisma Holdings, Ltd., a natural gas firm owned by Ukrainian-Jewish oligarch Ihor Kolomoisky.

NATO has also recently temporarily moved its Allied Joint Force Command headquarters from Naples to Cincu in central Romania as a warning to not only Russia over Ukraine but Serbia and Macedonia over the Turkish Stream pipeline deal. The NATO command in Cincu also controls the NATO Kosovo Force (KFOR) that is headquartered at Camp Bondsteel in Kosovo. The Kosovo-Macedonia border has recently witnessed border provocations by Kosovo Liberation Army (KLA) personnel that could not have been carried out without the knowledge and acquiescence of NATO and the American military at Bondsteel.

But Russia and China are staging joint naval exercises in the Mediterranean in mid-May to warn Washington and its allies that any attempt to interfere with both Turkish Stream and the Balkans route of China's Silk Road project can face the combined military might of the two Eurasian political, economic, and military giants. Although the joint naval drills are the fourth between the two regional superpowers, it is the first time they have been conducted in the Mediterranean, a sea that NATO considers to be its own "private lake."

Nuland and company have already instructed the SDSM and other opposition leaders that their first order upon seizing power from the democratically-elected government will be to drop the name of their country, Macedonia, in order to placate Greece, which has always objected to the name based on irredentist fears about the Macedonian population of its northern region of Thessaloniki (Salonica) wanting to unite with their kinfolk to the north. Nuland has apparently been conspiring with Jews in Israel and the United States, whose families emigrated from Thessaloniki (Salonica), to help stir up tensions on both sides of the Greek and Macedonian borders over the country name issue.

Nuland and her co-conspirators now stand ready to toss a lighted match on Macedonia and the entire Balkans region. They could not do any more damage if they personally set fire to the Turkish Stream natural gas pipeline.
